January Heat Breaks All - Time Records

Light rains Tuesday broke a month-long dry period in Central Texas that saw temperatures climb to a record high last weekend. The almost rainless three months of winter paralleled the winter of 1950-51 when less than an inch of rain was recorded from November 1 through an unseasonably warm January 31.

An 89 degree temperature Saturday afternoon broke all previous records for January highs. Temperatures on record at City Hall since 1908 show several January highs in the mid 80's but Saturday's was the first recorded above 85.

Lack of rain has caused concern among area farmers and ranchers and a long range weather forecast from the U. S. Weather Service gives little hope for a break in the drouth.

The forecast is for normal temperatures through February and lower than normal rainfall. But if weather cycles can be believed, the rain picture should change in March. November - December - January rainfall in 1950-51 totaled 0.61, but with heavy spring and summer rains, the 1951 total was 22.15. Rains measured for the same period in 1970-71 totaled 1.04.

Lowest year-end rainfall total recorded since 1908 was in 1963 when Cameron received only 16.37 inches, about 20 inches below normal.

The Tuesday rain was accompanied by a drop in temperature, to a 46 high and 37 low. But this couldn't compare to February 2, 1951 when Cameron recorded its record low, an icy 5 degrees.

Public Hearing Draws Queries, Little Opposition

The city will proceed with street paving plans this year following a public hearing held during a regular council session Tuesday evening.

Property owners who will be affected by the assessment paving program were notified prior to the hearing and about ten residents attended the hearing. Letters were read from several others who were unable to attend.

Questions were answered, most of them concerning cost to property owners. Mayor E. A. Perrin and City Atty. Ed Magre explained cost will vary according to width of street, depth of paving, and installation of curb and gutter.

Paving is planned for sections of Austin, Crockett, Jackson, 20th, Karnes, and 13th streets.

Mayor Perrin explained that priority will be given to streets where property owners pay their assessments first.

An ordinance closing the public hearing and leveling assessments was approved by Councilmen.

In other business, Council heard Ray Jeter, of Central Frieght Lines in Waco, announce that the freight company plans to build a new $30,000 freight terminal to replace the present one.

Jeter asked the city to sell the company a ten-foot strip of land next to the terminal, needed for the proposed larger terminal. He added that the new building would keep trucks out of the street when loading or unloading.

Council upheld Streets Supt. James Hale's refusal to allow two non-city residents to dispose of poison at the city landfill. Hale explained his decision was based on location of the water table in the landfill area and the fact that the landfill is not permanent city property.

Mayor Perrin noted that a large part of refuse brought to Cameron's landfill is coming from rural people who do not have disposal areas. Perrin said he has talked with county commissioners about the problem but they report difficulty in obtaining land for this purpose.

Milam County has joined the EDD Manpower Training Program and Cameron will pay half the cost of membership, about $188. Under the program, expenses incurred by attendance of the Police Chief at law enforcement training will be paid to the city. The chief is enrolled in a 156-hour course during February at Central Texas College.

Opposition, voiced and expressed by letter, questioned paving a section of 13th instead of Harding and paving a section of Austin along vacant land

With F.M.L.

Leon Hale, Houston Post columnist, did a column on artist-sculptor James Brock which appeared in the February 3 edition.

Says Hale: "Brock talks to you in a polite honest, good-ol'-country-boy way, answering questions with yes-sir and no-sir when you don't expect it. His manner and open face decide for you within five minutes after you meet him that you're going to like him; that he's bound to be the sort of fellow you could buy a used car from and it'd be just what he said it was.

"So right away you're pulling for him, hoping he'll sit right there in that horse barn at Cameron, Texas, and become a famous western sculptor and painter. Because it would be such a satisfying success story, one to pump encouragement into bank presidents as well as good ol' country boys."

111 is one of four Texas newspapermen invited to lecture, discourse, justify, rationalize or explain developments in career journalism at U of T's Department of Journalism, School of Communications in Austin.

Emphasis is on advertising, offset, layout and computers.

It will go something like this: "Advertising fuels the offset, computerized vehicle which prints the words and pictures which inform and contribute to constructive change in this country. . ."

High sounding? I suppose. But for a Yankee to be asked to speak to some 280 Texas J-Schoolers is quite a concession. Consider the barrier in language. Consider that I am over 30. Consider the mistake somebody made in Austin.

Thanks for the encouragements through the years, many anonymous or unsung, which bring your Cameron Herald this recognition.

One is told 9 times to 1 that something cannot be done or that it could be done more easily, more successfully somewhere else.

Starting a newspaper is a difficult task. But those few who have recouped the strengths and weaknesses of an old one, like your Herald, know the demands are greater.

One learns at times controversy is the least of one's worries. This is in a day when public or private image is a chief concern.

One's motives are questioned, as news stories sometime question, in effect, the acts of public bodies or public figures. That is part of controversy. Integrity is unproven unless it is hammered and honed, twisted and turned.

Concern now is for the future for this and every industry which is stricken by volatile and costly change and competition three deep.

Respect in one's chosen field is probably the highest accord one ever gets in this life. Fellow professionals see it all, one time or another. And they know sooner than later, one stands on two feet in two shoes, his own.

It has often been suggested I teach or specialize or write books or almost anything but try to bring this newspaper back in what has been called a "newspaperman's graveyard."

Your Herald's growth in its field is akin to Cameron's modern development. Numerous staff people have fueled the various scoops and risks and promotions and undertakings. And their record in college and profession, a number within newspapers, is reassuring to those of us who stayed with Cameron and Milam County when the metro attraction was, and is still, so great.

Things change, even allowing 111 to speak to journalism students about modern journalism, about things, we are advised, which will not occur in metro dailies for some time.

When all the tests are over, either in the classroom or at the newsstand, the only verdict of a newspaper is a public one. Readers say we have passed, thus far, but the finals are never in.

111 would like to see the 200th year of this publication, but science yet is unable to assure such longevity. When that anniversary, occurs, maybe some grandchildren will recall stories from Les and Martin, wherever they are, and say:

"We know about newspapers. They'll kill you, if you let them. They'll test every sinew, if you let them. But they can build and heal, enlighten and entertain, if you know how. And that ol' Cameron Herald, for a while, knew how. It tried. We know. We were a part of it."

Baylor Coach To Speak At Yoe Football Banquet

Tickets are now on sale for the annual Yoeman Football Banquet to be held Monday, Feb. 15 at Methodist Fellowship Hall.

Guest speaker for the evening will be Pat Culpepper, assistant coach at Baylor University.

Culpepper "won his spurs" on the University of Texas line and was voted both the Earl Blaike and Swede Nelson awards his senior year.

A native of Cleburne, he joined the Bruin staff in 1968 from Colorado after having previously served his old line boss, Jim Pittman at Tulane and a coaching assignment at UT.

He participated on the 1960 Bluebonnet Bowl and the 1961 and 1962 Cotton Bowl games as a Longhorn and was on the sidelines as coach as Texas played in the 1963 Cotton Bowl and 1964 Orange Bowl tilts.

Highlights of the Yoeman banquet will include presentation of awards to the Outstanding Yoeman of 1970, Booster of the Year, and the football sweetheart.

Tickets are available at $2.50 at the Yoe High School principal's office.

So Laugh A Little....

We all like to think we are different. And we are endowed with identity different physically from anyone else and different mentally and emotionally from anyone else, if only in the swirl of a fingerprint or a past experience.

We are underendowed with a sense of humor. And willingness to laugh at the human condition, specifically one's own, is the grace that keeps one off the "happy farm" or a hangup with booze or drugs.

"Uptight" is a phrase adults learn from the young. Interesting the young should phrase it for us. They should be the "cool" ones.

Everybody wants to grow up, get his "kicks", make his "pile" or find his niche and slide home to senescence "free." Unfortunately, there is no slide, only a wane.

We of the "uptight", whoever we are, should laugh more. The body responds by release of muscles, arteries, veins. The mind eases too, since it is a complex of muscle, veins, nerve endings and arteries.

It would seem the phrase "The mind boggles" is now a cliche when once it was proper to describe a befuddling complexity.

Now everything is complex, boggling almost at will.

So laugh a little. Why not? Those nerve endings we save may be our own.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

LAWMAKERS EYE BOTTLED WATER

REP. JOHN S. MONAGAN (Conn.) ". . .The American bottled drinking water industry has grown explosively in the last decade. Increased affluence, pollution scares, the varying quality of available supplies, and the taste of chlorinated water have created additional customers for the bottled water companies.

"People wary of the quality of municipal water supplies or tired of the taste of tap water have turned to privately processed and bottled products.

"THE AMERICAN BOTTLED WATER ASSOCIATION which represents 90 percent of the bottlers of still (Not fizzy) water, estimates that 1969 sales reach $80 MILLION and are growing at a rate of 15 to 20 percent a year.

"Many supermarkets now stock jugs of water for their customers, and in some localities bottled water is delivered each day in the same fashion as milk or orange juice. . .

"In light of this sudden and substantial growth, it is alarming that no specific and uniform Federal standards exist to control the quality of bottled water. Varied State regulations exist, though some States have no regular system for checking the safety of bottled drinking water products. To remedy this deficiency, I have introduced legislation. . .that would empower the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare to prescribe minimum health and safety standards for bottled water if after scientific investigation he determines that such standards are necessary.

"The bill would then outlaw the interstate transportation of those bottled water products which failed to meet these standards. Producers or distributors who violated the statue would be subject to a restraining order and a penalty of not more than $1,000.

"The sudden growth of the bottled drinking water industry has revealed the shortage of public information on this subject. . ."

A GRASSROOTS COMMENT

The rush is to bottled water. BORDEN, INC., has bought out the CRYSTAL SPRINGS WATER CO., of Miami. COCA COLA BOTTLING COMPANY of Los Angeles, purchased ARROWHEAD PURITAS WATERS last May. ARROWHEAD claims 250,000 customers in 10 southern California counties; double the number of 10 years ago.

It's reported that BLOOMINGDALES (Department Store), New York City, is offering a 11-ounce aerosol can of ESTEE LAUDER FRESH MINERAL WATER SPRAY, as a skin stimulater and complexion relaxer. The price of the 11-ounce aerosol can -- $5.00, that's 45¢ an ounce. It is also reported that the water from the same spring in Deer Park, Md., sells in that area for 75¢ a gallon. In both instances the product is offered as -- water.

Now the Federal government is becoming interested.-J. C.

TIC Semminar To Draw Top Execs

AUSTIN

Industrial development over the next 25 years will be the key subject Feb. 18-19 during a special advanced seminar co-sponsored by the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs and the Texas Industrial Commission.

Only the first 25 industrial development executives from around the state will be accepted for the blue-ribbon seminar to be held at the Joe C. Thompson Conference Center on the campus of the University of Texas.

State and national economics, manpower development and governmental responsibility are among subjects to be discussed by leading authorities in the fields of planning for the future.

"The unique conference will challenge the professional developer to think ahead to the year 2000," Jim Harwell, executive director of the Texas Industrial Commission, explained. "We have assembled a list of speakers who will explore areas of industrial development that we won't even reach in the near future."

Dr. Wilbur Thompson of Wayne State University in Detroit, Mich., will discuss the "Change in the National Economic/Industrial Mix," and Dr. David Carley, president of Inland Steel Development Corp. of Madison, Wisc., will speak on the "Government's Role in Economic Development."

Other speakers are Dr. George Kozmetsky of the University of Texas at Austin, discussing "The Change in the Texas Economic/Industrial Mix," and his UT colleagues Dr. Ray Marshall, speaking on "Labor and Management Power Demands;" and Dr. Stanley Arbingast, moderator of a panel at the close of the session to provide an overview of the meeting.

Apprenticeships in the construction trades now have a minority group representation of more than 8 percent, compared to 6 percent 2 years ago, Secretary of Labor J. D. Hodgson has reported.

Labor Department Raises Income Level Defining 'Poor'

The Labor Department nas raised the income guides it uses in determining eligibility for manpower programs aimed at improving employability of poor persons. They are effective immediately.

The new levels are approximately $200 higher than those in use last year.

The change was made by the Manpower Administration to conform with a recent revision in the poverty income guidelines established by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

For purposes of program eligibility, a person is considered to be poor if he or his family receives welfare payments or if annual net income does not exceed the following limits:

Family Size	Non-Farm	Farm
1	$1,900	$1,600
2	2,500	2,000
3	3,100	2,500
4	3,800	3,200
5	4,400	3,700
6	5,000	4,200
7	5,600	4,700

Income limits for families larger than seven person can be determined by adding $600 for the non-farm and $500 for farm levels for each additional person.

Major Welfare, Finance Decisions Facing Solons

By Vern Sanford

AUSTIN

Legislators face a week of major decisions.

Before the House are key portions of Gov. Preston Smith's finance plan. House followed the Senate in hurrying to a vote the proposal to lift the $80 million a year welfare spending lid.

An emergency $48.4 million deficit spending bill to avert a welfare crisis is perhaps their biggest problem today.

A four-fifth vote of both houses is required to suspend the Texas constitution's "pay as you go" requirement and permit lawmakers to go into the red for the balance of this fiscal year . . . .which ends in August.

If legislators decline to take this route, they must pass a tax bill to raise the money by March 1. To place a revenue-raising measure into immediate effect would require passage by a two-thirds majority.

Alternative is reduction in welfare benefits by early spring.

Another matter being moved to an early showdown is Governor Smith's proposal to float a $450 million state bond issue secured by income from permanent school fund revenue diversion. Both bond issue and tapping of school land lease money would require constitutional amendments.

Regardless of the House vote on the bond issue, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes sizes up Senate sentiment toward it as cold.

Mood of both houses appears to favor early passage of code of ethics legislation.

If Governor Smith's finance program doesn't fare better than he anticipates, Barnes says, he will ask House Speaker Gus Mutscher to join him in urging the Governor to submit some alternatives.

COURTS SPEAK

Third Court of Civil Appeals here turned down the plan of the Fredericksburg Community Savings and Loan Association to provide mobile service to Burnet, Bandera, Kimble, Llano and Mason counties via trailer.

Third Court also affirmed the savings and loan commissioner's decision to grant a charter to Matagorda County Savings and Loan Association in Bay City.

An April 7 hearing is set in the Third Court on the Sharpstown Bank of Houston dispute with an insurance company over a performance bond to insure repayment of a loan.

Mustang Island park purchase --whether State Parks and Wildlife Commission has authority to spend $4.2 million in state and federal funds for the property--has been the subject of a lengthy hearing in the federal district court at Austin for two weeks.

CAR INSURANCE PLAN

Auto insurance agents in a hearing before the Insurance Board proposed "a much better insurance package" at reduced cost.

But a spokesman acknowledged no actuarial studies have been made to back up their claim.

While their plan keeps present liability coverage, it also would extend unlimited medical expense benefits to the insured regardless of who is at fault in accidents. It would replace up to 60 per cent of wages lost due to accident injuries to maximum of $250 a week, and provide death and dismemberment coverage.

Although all of the above (proposed as mandatory coverage in each policy) would increase costs, agents claimed the overall premium would be reduced if $150 deductible damage coverage was substituted for $50 and $100 deductible.

AG OPINIONS

A Justice of the Peace is not authorized or required to present the state's case, or undertake representation of the state's interest, in any matter before him, Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin has held.

In another recent opinion, Martin concluded that the El Paso county treasurer is duty bound to countersign checks signed by the county auditor when the commissioners court orders money transferred from the general fund to a special bank account for disbursement by check to welfare recipients. However, said Martin, the treasurer may refer checks to the comissioners court for direction.

Martin obtained a $1,000 judgement against Proler Steel Corporation of El Paso as the result of an air pollution suit.

FEDERAL HELP LAUDED

Word that the Secretary of Interior has announced the availability of more than $2 million to the State of Texas for fish and wildlife research in 1971 was greeted with enthusiasm by E. A. (Gene) Walker, director of Wildlife Services for the State.

Texas has participated in the Federal-State wildlife program since 1937 and the Sport Fish restoration project since 1950.

"This is the backbone of the work program in Wildlife and Fisheries," said Walker, "and the results of this basic research has provided tremendous increases in hunting and fishing opportunities for the people of this state."

As an example Walker cited the fact that Texas has more deer than any other state; larger bag limits and longer seasons on quail. . .just to mention a few of the benefits made possible by Federal financial assistance.

The Lone Star State will receive $1,538,500 in wildlife funds and $653,750 for fish restoration.

Money for wildlife research is derived from the 11 per cent excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition. Funds for fish projects come from a levy of 10 per cent on sport fishing equipment.

Appropriation is made available through the Interior's Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife. Formula for appropriating hinges on the number of hunting and fishing licenses issued in the State.

Money also can be used for purchase of land and water for wildlife and public use.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

According to a lot of articles I've read lately a lot of people are arguing that the farm program is costing the country too much money, that not only should it be abolished but the Agriculture Department itself ought to be abolished or merged with some other department.

This is a serious matter. Now I know that the farm population is dwindling, is down to 8 percent of the total population and may go lower than that if we have a dry year and the price of hogs stays down, and I can see how city people could resent helping farmers out when cities are head over heels in problems of their own, so much so in fact that lots of city people would move out now if their furniture weren't mortgaged.

Before this gets out of hand, however, the farmers have got to fight back and I have figured out an idea that will save the day.

We've got to stop calling it a farm program. It's an environmental problem. If we can get the environmentalists interested in perserving the disappearing farmer we've got it made.

Explain it to them. Farmers may not be worth much in themselves but you'll upset the balance of nature if they disappear. They're bound to feel a farmer is worth as much to the environment as a whooping crane.

Merge the farmer-preservation drive with the drive to save the Florida aligator or the African leopard. What would this world be like with no farmers and no polar bears? What ecology-conscious woman wants a coat made out of leopard skins or a farmer's hide?

It's the only way. With only 8 percent of the total population, farmers aren't going to get very far with their voting power, but how many votes have the whooping cranes got? Aligators never elected anybody, I don't think, it's sometimes hard to tell, but they stopped a $50,000,000 canal in Florida.

I call on every farmer in the country to get on board the environmental bandwagon. It's the only way to keep the species alive.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Clean Water Laws

One-and-a-half centuries ago, the poet Byron wrote:

"Till taught by pain, men really know not what good water's worth."

Today, taught by the pain of pollution in a thousand lakes and streams, we are becoming acutely aware of what good water's worth. Clean water laws are being enacted with new urgency and enforced with new vigor.

Yet, serious objections may be raised by those who are affected adversely. How do the courts look upon such objections?

To begin with, there are indeed limits as to how far the government can go in fighting pollution. Take this case:

A state water commission tried to halt the discharge of sewage into a certain river. But the sewage was being discharged so far from the nearest community, under such carefully controlled conditions, that the chance of any harm to public health was almost nil.

Under these circumstances, a court ruled that the water commission was overstepping its authority. The court felt that even in the name of clean water, there has to be some reasonable basis for government action.

Nevertheless, the vast majority of clean water laws have been upheld, even when they impose real hardship on a particular city, a particular industry, or a particular individual.

Consider the case of a factory owner who had been discharging raw pollutants into a local brook. When a new law banned this practice, he took the matter to court.

"I don't challenge the law itself," he said. "But the fact is that because of the ban, my factory is suddenly worth about $100,000 less than it was before. Why shouldn't the government reimburse me for that loss? Otherwise, this is taking private property without compensation, which is unconstitutional."

However, the court denied his claim, saying this was not a "taking" in the constitutional sense.

"The design is not to take property for public use," said the court. "It is to regulate the use of property so as to protect the common right of all citizens."

Planning For College? Check On Job Prospects

Elementary and secondary teachers, mathematicians and life scientists will grow in overabundance in the 1970s according to Labor Department estimates reported by the January 1971 National Consumer Finance Association monthly newsletter, "Finance Facts."

After years of political rhetoric and media reporting that our schools were in sad shape because of a lack of space and teachers, we find ourselves glutted with college graduates in these teaching occupations.

The nation's colleges and universities are turning out record numbers of graduates and are expected to continue to do so throughout the 1970's.

The number of persons earning a bachelor's degree will climb by two thirds, and those earning master's and doctor's degrees will double by 1980.

Ample total supply of graduates roughly in balance with manpower requirements seems in the offing for the 12-year period between 1968 and 1980.

Although different demand-supply situations appear likely among different occupations, teaching, long a shortage occupation, is about to undergo a sharp change in prospects. Aggregate supply is expected to significantly exceed demand if recent entry patterns in the occupation continue.

In scientific fields, shortages of chemists, geologists, and geophysicists, seem likely, and surpluses of mathematicians and life scientists may result if students continue to elect these fields in the same proportions as in the past.

Other areas for which potential shortages are in prospect include counseling, social work, urban planning, and a variety of occupations related to the planning and administration of local governments.

SAVINGS BOND SALES

December sales of United States Savings Bonds in Milam County were $61,753, according to County Bond Chairman Henry Siebman. Sales during 1970 totaled $832,397 which represents 136 per cent of the yearly sales goal of $610,000.

Dun & Bradstreet Begins Pollution Control Survey

NEW YORK

The Marketing Services Division of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. this month begins a national survey to determine what steps are under way to control industrial pollution.

Its aim is to show manufacturers of pollution controls where these products are planned or in use. But D&B also hopes there will then be a greater stimulation in the market for antipollution devices.

Full time business interviewers on D&B's staff will be gathering primary research data from 2,000 plants throughout the United States on a random sample basis.

Completion of the project, which will be dewailed in a computer-produced report, is scheduled for May.

In conducting the survey, the company will be meeting the needs expressed by businessmen involved in marketing pollution control industry.

Medical Assistants To Attend Symposium

Medical receptionists, secretaries, bookkeepers, nurses, and technicians employed by physicians in the Temple area will attend a "Traveling Educational Symposium" on Sunday, February 21, at the Holiday Inn-Temple.

The one-day program is sponsored by the Texas Medical Assistants Association. All medical assistants within a 100 mile radius are invited to attend the symposium, which is designed to aid them in rendering more efficient service to their employers and to the public which they serve.

Lions See U.S. Film

Rod Holcombe, Milam County health officer, presented a film, "America" for the Cameron Noon Lions Club meeting Monday.

The sound-color film showed colorful areas of the United States and portrayed outstanding men the U.S. history.

County Agent's Notes

1970 Ag Income Shows Big Jump

By J. D. Moore

Milam County's 1970 Gross Agricultural income went up nearly 6 million dollars over the 1969 figure according to figures released by those associated with agriculture.

The largest increase was from the 60,000 acre grain sorghum crop.

The million and a half dollar cotton crop from 33,440 harvested acres showed a half million dollar increase over 1969.

Cottonseed sales from 1970 increased 38 percent due to better prices received for cottonseed in 1970.

The other big increase came from the 1970 pecan crop, an estimated million pounds of pecans sold for record prices.

Livestock, dairy, swine, poultry and poultry products sales increased nearly 3 million dollars in 1970 over the 1969 figure. A half million dollar increase in swine sales gave the greatest increase from livestock sales.

The only agricultural enterprises showing losses were wheat, sheep and wool. Then too, A.C.P. and soil bank funds showed losses in the government payment figures. Detailed county income information is available at the county agents office.

COUNTY MEETINGS

The Home Garden and County Grain Sorghum meetings held last week received enthusiastic local support. Much valuable information was presented by A&M Specialist.

With fields in a high state of cultivation and some fertilizer already put out, a good rain would change the farm scene immensely.

Most farm and garden planting will start the latter half of February depending on moisture conditions. Farmers were very busy this past week planning their 1971 crop programs at the local ASCS office.

No definite trend have been established for the 1971 cropping plans, but verbal opinions indicate a possible increase in grain sorghum acreage with the cotton acreage remaining about the same in Milam county for the 1971 crop year.

ASCS NEWS

By Douglas Buck

Milam County planning sessions will be held on how best to use the new Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) to improve and protect the environment for the benefit of all.

As part of the environmental improvement program of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, REAP has been cited by Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin as an example of the new direction USDA is pursuing.

Secretary Hardin said REAP "will focus efforts on community-sponsored projects for flood prevention and small watershed protection, pollution abatement, and the safeguarding of lakes and streams. The thrust is on providing more ways to let people help themselves in projects that will, in the words of President Nixon, 'return greater public benefits at less public cost'."

REAP is funded in every agricultural county in the Nation. The 1971 funds allocation for Milam County is $59,607.

Farmers and others participating in REAP projects will in most cases pay an equal, or more than equal, amount of the costs. REAP updates the conservation cost-sharing program through which for many years the Federal Government and farmers have been partners in establishing conservation practices needed in the public interest.

The program has now been re-structured, and re-named REAP, in order to better serve one of the most pressing national priorities -- improvement of the environment.

The County ASC Committee will work not only with farmers, but also other community interest groups, including city and local governments, to determine priority for agricultural conservation projects with both rural and urban benefits.

These benefits could include cleaner water, purer air, improved open space, recreational opportunities, better wildlife habitat, and similar environmental improvements.

REAP projects are local projects -- planned and administered by local people.

The program's conservation and pollution prevention practices, which are carried out on farmlands, are approved for cost-sharing by the farmer-elected County ASC Committee, which allocates the Government share of the funds and has final responsibility for determining that the practices as installed will accomplish the needed conservation or pollution prevention.

APPLICATIONS

Application for cost-sharing may be made by individual farmers or by groups of farmers, after working in conjunction with non-farm people who have an interest in the conservation and environmental improvement goals which are sought.

Applications are filed at the County ASCS Office, and applicants are cautioned not be begin work until the County ASC Committee has acted on their applications.

The Rural Environmental Assistance Program will put great emphasis on practices to reduce water pollution. Water retaining and retarding measures on farms are a major factor in reducing pollution from agricultural wastes.

These include such installations as dams and ponds, permanent grass cover, waterways, buffer strips, and tree planting.

The Secretary of Agriculture has directed all appropriate agencies within USDA to give priority attention to developing a forward-looking environmental program for the Seventies.

The County ASC Committee has high hopes that the REAP projects and practices in Milam County will be able to provide tangible environmental benefits for all the people in this area.

Some Farm Prices Were Lower Last December

COLLEGE STATION

Texas calves brought cattlemen in the state $.90/cwt. less in Dec. 1970 than they did in the same month of 1969, reports Dr. Ed Uvacek, Extension livestock marketing specialist.

This comparison is just the opposite of what happened in the nation as a whole. U.S. calves rose to a level of $32.80/cwt. in Dec. 1970, while Texas calves brought $31.50/cwt.

Dr. Uvacek indicated that this opposite price movement probably has altered the cash receipts of Texas cattle producers.

The bulk of agricultural commodities in Texas took the same route as the calves in returning substantially lower prices to producers when the Dec. 1970 and Dec. 1969 data is compared.

Uvacek said that among the commodities in Texas returning lower prices were hogs, sheep, lambs, chickens, broilers, turkeys, eggs, wool, mohair, sweet potatoes, beef cattle, and calves.

Products in the state which brought higher prices included wheat, corn, oats, sorghum grain, rice, hay, upland cotton, cottonseed, and milk.

Only peanuts returned the same prices in both periods, according to the specialist.

He commented that for the most part these same types of commodity - price relationships existed for the nation as a whole. However, he added that there were some differences, such as the increase in U.S. sweet potato prices opposed to the drop in Texas prices and the calf price comparison.

Fertilizer May Not Solve Fishing Pond Problems

AUSTIN

The use of fertilizer has largely been oversold as a way to improve fishing in ponds and lakes, a Texas Parks and Wildlife Department official believes.

"If you have an overabundance of small fish, muddy water or excessive amounts of algae or water plants, fertilization may be a waste of time," said Ted Lowman, assistant coordinator of fish hatchery production.

In other words, Lowman said, improper use of fertilizer can cause further proliferation of undesirable water plants if large beds of rooted vegetation are present. Conversely, too small a dosage of fertilizer can also be harmful.

"There are so many factors involved in the water quality of a pond or lake that fertilization is a hit-or-miss proposition at best," Lowman continued. "You need enough algae bloom to feed the tiny one-celled organisms at the lower end of the food chain, but under adverse weather conditions too much bloom can use up too much oxygen and kill the fish."

The best place to use fertilizer probably is in a new impoundment which has not developed much weed growth, Lowman said. With proper application and a little luck, a bloom of unicellular algae can be formed.

This bloom of plankton if sufficiently dense often absorbs most of the available sunlight, thereby controlling the growth of rooted plants on the bottom of the lake. If too little fertilizer is applied, however, the bloom won't reach proper density and the rooted plants will get the nutriment.

Fertilizer shouldn't be dumped into the water. If this is done, most of the material will sink to the bottom and be used by undesirable plants.

Put the fertilizer in a loose-weave burlap sack and suspend it a few feet underwater from the end of a dock or floating raft. Allow it to drift around the lake if possible.

Fertilization should be performed in the springtime.

Then sit back and hope the fertilizer will be the basis for a healthy food chain -- a chain at the end of which is a lunker largemouth bass.

Fish Kills Should Be Reported To P&W Department

AUSTIN

The sooner authorities know about fish kills the more apt they are to determine the cause and, if the situation warrants, nail the guilty parties, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Anyone discovering a fish kill should call the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department as soon as possible, and if he has a camera on hand, he should take several photographs showing the extent of the kill.

Had a recent fish kill at Freeport been handled this way, department authorities say, the job of determining the cause and the extent of the kill would have been easier.

By the time department officials found out about this kill, most of the dead fish had been buried in order to rid the area of an unsanitary situation.

Department personnel now have little to work with in their efforts to find out exactly what happened.

IRS Questions

This column of questions and answers on Federal tax matters is provided by the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q - I was married last year and both my wife and I got a tax package in the mail. If we file a joint return, whose label should we use?

A - Use your name label since the husband's Social Security number is used to identify joint returns. However, you should print your wife's name on the label. Her Social Security number should be entered in the space provided on the return.

Q - If I let IRS compute my tax and I have a refund coming, how long will it take to get it?

A - IRS can compute the tax and issue a refund within 4-5 weeks from the date the return is filed with the service center. Actually, it won't delay a refund to have IRS compute the tax since the computations are checked on all returns we receive.

Q - If you don't have to have a job before you move, can anyone deduct moving expenses under the new law?

A - No, there are still limitations on who can deduct moving expenses even though these limitations are less restrictive. For details, contact your local IRS office and ask for a free copy of Publication 521, "Tax Information on Moving Expenses."

You can also find information on moving expenses, as well as many other subjects in Publication No. 17, "Your Federal Income Tax." This booklet may be purchased for 75 cents from all IRS offices or the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402.

Q - What kind of mistakes held up taxpayer refunds last year?

A - Refunds were delayed when taxpayers had to be contacted to supply information they forgot to include - or listed incorrectly - when they filed their Form 1040's Missing W-2 forms, missing signatures, and missing or inaccurate Social Security numbers were some of the major types of errors.

Q - The name label is on the front cover of the instruction package this year instead of where it used to be on the Form 1040. Why the change?

A - To reduce costs and add flexibility to printing procedures. To put the name label on the Form 1040 required the cover of the package to have a cutout space. The cutting added to the cost of the packages and also limited the number of printers who would supply the packages.

Before the present system was adopted, it was tested successfully last year in several parts of the country.

Q - I have a partial scholarship that covers some of my college costs. Do I have to report this as income?

A - Most scholarships are not taxable and do not have to be reported. Since there are many different types of scholarships, check with the organization that gave it to you for information on its tax status. Details can be found in Publication 507, "Tax Information on Scholarships and Fellowships," available free by contacting your local IRS office.

Q - What taxes can I deduct on my return?

A - If you itemize deductions, your state and local income taxes, personal property, real estate, general sales and state and local gasoline taxes may be deducted. List these on Schedule A, Itemized Deductions.

Federal taxes such as Social Security tax or those on alcohol or tobacco are not deductible. Hunting licenses, driver's licenses or auto inspection fees are also not deductible.

Texas Gets Funds For Restoration Of Fish & Wildlife

AUSTIN

Texas was allocated $653,750 in federal funds for fish restoration and $1,538,500 for wildlife restoration for operations in 1971.

Texas and Alaska received equal amounts for wildlife restoration and were the two states receiving the highest allocations. Texas, California and Alaska received the highest allocations for fish restoration.

Funds are made available by the U. S. Department of Interior's Burau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife to all 50 states, Guam, the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico.

Wildlife funds are derived from the 11 percent excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition, and money for fish projects comes from a similar levy on certain sport fishing equipment.

States receive amounts based on a formula using the state's area and the number of its hunting and fishing license holders. Under these restoration programs, states initiate projects and are reimbursed for up to 75 percent of their cost.

Projects which qualify include acquisition of land and water for wildlife and fish for public use, improvement of wildlife and fish habitat, development of facilities for sportsmen and research to aid in wildlife and fish management.

In all, $30,800,000 was allocated to the states for wildlife restoration and $13,105,000 for fish restoration.

MRS. MICHAEL WILLIS BOEDEKER
(Miss Angela Jo Sharkey)

Church Rites Unite Couple In Plainview

First Christian Church of Plainview was the setting for the Saturday evening wedding of Miss Angela Joe Sharkey and Michael Willis Boedeker. Double ring vows were directed by Rev. Luther Durkop, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church of Providence.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Sharkey of Plainview, J. D. Boedeker of Plainview and Mrs. E. J. Kuzel of Buckholts.

Candelabra, palms and bouquets of mums and daisies decorated the altar area. Wedding music was presented by Miss Mildred Savoie, organist, and Miss Cathy Crossland, vocalist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of peau de soie designed with high neckline, empire waist, semi-full skirt and camelot sleeves. An inset of Venice lace enhanced the sleeves and the bodice of the gown. the full back terminated in a sweeping chapel train. Her veil of imported illusion fell from a coif to floor length. She carried a bouquet of white daisies with orchids and two red roses which she gave to her mother and mother-in-law. The bouquet was placed on a white Bible belonging to the bride's mother.

Miss Linda Sharkey was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Cathy Sharkey, also the bride's sister, Miss Pam Irwin, Farmington, N.M., Miss Debbie Boedeker of Buckholts, the groom's sister, and Miss Lynn Wilbourn.

Their dresses of floor length were fashioned from avocado green velvet and were styled with empire waists and short puffed sleeves. They carried cascade bouquets of gold mums and gold and white daisies.

Miss Paula Stanton registered guests attending the wedding and the reception that followed.

Flower girl was polly Harris of Tulia, cousin of the bride, and Steven Barrett was ring bearer. Conner and FloBeth Stamper of Jacksboro, the bride's cousins, were candlelighters.

Best man was the groom's cousin, Merlin Boedeker. Serving as groomsmen were Johnny Hodel, H. G. Graham, Bobby Flippo of Canyon and John Andy Vogelsang of Ben Arnold, cousin of the groom.

Wayne Taack, Johnny Quebe and Glenn Quebe, all of Lockney, seated the wedding guests.

Assistants for the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Bob Richmond, Mrs. James Crossland, Cynthia and Claudia Cleere Azle, cousins of the bride, Mrs. Amos Sedgwick, Kress and Mrs. Bobby Flippo of Canyon.

A white pleated cloth covered the serving table and was centered with a candelabra surrounded by the bridesmaids bouquets.

After a wedding trip to Durango, Colo., the couple will live in Plainview.

The bride graduated from Plainview High School in 1970 and attended West Texas State University in Canyon. The groom graduated from Buckholts High School and is employed at Jack Morris Ford.

Cameronite Has 'Snowy' Experience

Mrs. Grady Little has returned from a three-weeks visit in Salina, Kansas in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Elder.

She accompanied the Elders and others from Salina to Atwood, Kan. to attend the wedding of Grady Elder to Miss Linda Wicke.

Mrs. Little said the journey back to Salina, about 130 miles from Atwood, provided a most unusual experience. The group, traveling in three cars, was snowbound for two nights and a day at Hays. An 8-inch snowfall had closed the highway.

"I've never seen such snow in my life," Mrs. Little said, and added that the snow was up to the level of car windows along the highway where snowplows had cleared the way.

It was quite a change to return to Cameron where weather has been more like spring and summer than winter.

Prunes, Potatoes, Citrus Fruits Share Honors On 'Plentiful' List

By Christine Laws
Co. Home Demonstration Agent

Nine could be your lucky number for February. That's how many different foods are reported on the plentiful supply this month. Prunes and potatoes head the list. Then there are oranges and orange juice, grapefruit and grapefruit juice, apples, onions, pork, broilers and peanuts and peanut products.

The plentiful foods list is part of a program to inform the public and the food trades about foods expected to be in abundant supply and in need of merchandising aid.

Barring adverse weather conditions, this season's orange crop will be the largest ever produced. Heavy supplies of fresh oranges, frozen orange juice, canned orange juice and chilled orange juice are in prospect for the month of February.

The grapefruit crop forecast is also set at a record level, with production expected to run about 25 percent greater than last year.

So provide your family with frequent servings of these vitamin C-rich fruits and juices this month.

Protein foods are also in the spotlight. Pork production during November and early December was running about 20 percent higher than a year ago, while broiler marketings during that time showed an increase of about 3 percent over the corresponding period last year. Peanut stocks continue high.

BUYING DRY BEANS, PEAS

When buying dry beans, peas and lentils, do you make your selection carefully or just pick up the first bag that's handy? Quality of the beans and peas you buy can make a difference in how they taste when prepared.

For instance, uniformity of the beans or peas is an important factor to consider. Mixed sizes will result in uneven cooking, since smaller beans cook faster than larger ones.

Federal grades for these products have been established to make your shopping easier. U.S. No. 1 is the top grade for dry whole or split peas, lentils and black - eyed peas. U.S. No. 1 Choice Handpicked, or Handpicked are among the top designations for Great Northern pinto and pea beans. U.S. Extra No. 1 designates the top quality for lima beans, either large or small.

Instead of the federal grade on beans and peas, you may find a state grade which is based on quality factors similar to those for federal grades.

However, if the packages are not marked with a federal or state grade, don't despair. You can be your own "grader" in a way by looking for the same factors a federal graker of USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service considers.

First try to buy your beans, peas or lentils in cellophane bags or other "see through" types of packages, such as cardboard boxes with a cellophane "window". Then consider these factors:

Brightness of Color -- Beans, peas and lentils, should have a bright uniform color. Loss of color usually indicates long storage, lack of freshness and a product that will take longer to cook. Eating quality, however, is not affected.

Uniformity of Size -- All the beans and peas should be of about the same size to assure uniform cooking.

Visible Defects -- Cracked seed coats, foreign material and pinholes caused by insect damage are signs of a low-quality product.

As in buying other products, you'll want to read the label. In addition to the grade, the package label can provide other important buying information.

By law, the label must contain at least the following basic information: the name and address of the manufacturer, packer or distributor, the common or usual name of the product (pea beans, Great Northern beans, etc.) and the weight (given in pounds & ounces).

Other information on the label might include a picture of a suggested way to serve beans, peas or lentils and instructions on how to prepare and serve them, including recipes.

Dry beans, peas and lentils should be kept in tightly covered containers and stored in a dry, cool place (50 to 70 degrees F.). Stored in this manner, they will keep their quality for several months.

You can leave the beans in the original package until opened. Then put them in a glass or metal jar or some other container with a tight-fitting lid.

Fast Cooking With Microwaves

COLLEGE STATION

Consumers can now bake bread in ten minutes, cook a hamburger in sixty seconds or roast the family dinner in half an hour ---if they use a microwave oven, announces Jimmie K. Ullom, Extension foods and nutrition specialist at Texas A&M University.

Use of these ovens may alter foods we eat and change the types of cooking vessels used, Miss Ullom says. Since the safety issue concerning microwave ovens has been clarified, their usage is expected to increase.

Miss Ullom explains that microwave ovens involve radiation, which is energy emitted in particles or waves.

The ovens do not produce X-rays but only microwaves, and so the hazards of radiation poisoning do not exist.

The fact that the government supplies astronauts with microwave ovens for cooking in the isolation chamber after moon flights is an implication of their safety.

Airlines have been using microwave ovens for some time on an experimental basis to provide pre-cooked meals in less than a minute, the specialist explains.

A growing number of other commercial operations are also using the ovens, making the total of microwave ovens in use in the U.S. close to 100,000.

The microwave method is unlike that of conventional ovens, in which heat slowly penetrates from the outside. No energy in the new ovens is wasted in heating the walls of the unit since heating begins immediately throughout the food.

The microwaves don't penetrate metal, so plastic or paper dishes and pans must be used. This characterisitc, of course, could open a whole new field for nonmetal cooking vessels.

One disadvantage of the microwave oven is that breads or pies do not form a brown crust. But the oven will cook potato chips light and right with no dark, unwanted color caused by carmelized sugar in the potato.

Fresh Vegetables Make Slim-Trim Hors D'Oeuvre

You don't have to have post-holiday horrors from jumping on the scale and finding that you have put on all those pounds! Be clever about the hors d'oeuvre you serve during the festive season, and you can save substantially on calories that often accompany "nibble" foods. Gather together at your market a bright, zesty-fresh array of vegetables—carrots, celery, cucumber, cauliflower and mushrooms. Serve them in bite-size pieces with a lower-calorie dip made with cottage cheese, blue cheese, and fresh tomato and chives. How cheerily they crunch, and how refreshing in the midst of rich holiday dishes. Later comes another delight when the scale tells you and your guests that Slim-Trim Hors D'Oeuvre are a calorie-saving treat.

Slim-Trim Vegetable Hors D'Oeuvre

- 2 cups (1 pound) cottage cheese
- ¼ cup skimmed milk
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon chopped chives
- 1 tomato, peeled and chopped
- ½ cup (2 ounces) crumbled blue cheese
- Cauliflowerets
- Celery
- Sliced scored cucumber*
- Carrot curls
- Sliced mushrooms

Combine cottage cheese and milk in container of electric blender; cover and process at high speed until smooth and creamy. Transfer to mixing bowl. Add salt, chives, tomato and blue cheese; mix well. Chill until serving time. Garnish with additional chopped tomato and chives; serve with vegetables. Makes about 2½ cups dip.

*Score cucumber by running tines of fork lengthwise down side of cucumber

To make carrot curls, use vegetable peeler to shave lengthwise strips from pared carrot. Curl each strip around finger, fasten with wooden pick and crisp in ice water for 1 or 2 hours.

"On My Honor"
The Boy Scouts of America have another anniversary February 7.
What a blessing the Scout organization has been to countless youths of America and to all the world.
Every Scout in every troop is a reverent, patriotic individual who is committed to live and work for God and Country. They are taught religious obligations by spiritual teachers, Scout leaders and by their parents.
When a Scout recites, "On My Honor," he means it.
When he says, "I Will Do My Best To Build, Serve and Achieve," believe him.
Just let him quote, "I Will Do All To The Glory of God," and all of us want to sponsor his troop.
Every boy who becomes a Scout, grows to be a better man. Encourage every boy to join a troop during their Anniversary February 7-13.
